Where to start

Writing wedding vows can be a beautiful and personal way to express your love and commitment to your partner.

Here's a guide to help you write the perfect wedding vows:

1. Reflect on Your Relationship:

Take some time to reflect on your relationship with your partner. Think about the moments and experiences that have brought you together and what makes your relationship unique.

2. Consider Your Feelings:

Think about your feelings for your partner. What do you love most about them? What qualities do they possess that make them special to you?

3. Think About Your Promises:

Consider what promises you want to make to your partner. These can be personal commitments that reflect your relationship and your hopes for the future.

4. Find Inspiration:

Look for inspiration in songs, books, or even movies that resonate with you and your relationship. You can also draw inspiration from your shared experiences and memories.

5. Write from the Heart:

Write your vows from the heart. Be sincere and authentic in your words, and don't be afraid to be vulnerable. Your vows should reflect your true feelings for your partner.

Where to start

6. Keep It Concise:

While you want your vows to be heartfelt, it's also important to keep them concise. Aim for around 1-2 minutes for timing to keep them meaningful and memorable.

7. Practice Out Loud:

Practice reading your vows out loud to get a feel for how they sound. Read out loud in front of a mirror. This can help you make any necessary adjustments and ensure that your vows flow smoothly.

8. Get Feedback:

Consider sharing your vows with a trusted friend or family member for feedback. They can offer valuable insights and help you refine your vows.

9. Finalise Your Vows:

Once you're happy with your vows, make any final edits and prepare to share them with your partner on your wedding day.

10. Speak from the Heart:

When it comes time to recite your vows, speak slowly and clearly, and remember to look into your partner's eyes. Let your love and commitment shine through in your words.

Remember, there's no right or wrong way to write your wedding vows. The most important thing is that they come from the heart and reflect your love and commitment to your partner.

Prompt's to get you started

These prompts can help you start brainstorming ideas for your wedding vows.

1. When We First Met:

Reflect on the moment you first met your partner.
How did you feel? What drew you to them?

2. Our Journey Together:

Think about the journey you've been on with your partner. What experiences have you shared? How have you grown together?

3. What I Love About You:

List the qualities you love most about your partner.
What makes them unique and special to you?

4. Our Future Together:

Envision your future together.
What dreams and goals do you have as a couple?
How do you see your love growing and evolving?

5. Promises I Want to Make:

Consider the promises you want to make to your partner.
These can be personal commitments that reflect your love and dedication to each other.

6. Favourite Memories

Recall your favorite memories together.
What moments stand out to you as the most meaningful and memorable?

Example Personal Vows

EXAMPLE 1.

(Name), you have filled my life with so much love and happiness.

The strength that you carry, the passion you display and the warmth of your heart, are just few of many reasons why I love you so much.

Thank you for being my best friend, for listening to my thoughts and for being my source of encouragement, comfort, and strength.

Today I promise to always love you and stand by you.
I promise to lift you up when you are feeling down, and lift you up even higher when you are on top of the world.

I promise to continue building more dreams with you, and work alongside with you to see those dreams through.
Today, I give you my heart and vow to you that I will always cherish our love.

EXAMPLE 2.

(name) from the moment I met you I knew there was something special about you.

There hasn't been a moment since that day that I haven't felt loved and supported and I am constantly amazed by how thoughtful you are.

I love how you always see the best in me, even at my worst.
I promise to always laugh at your jokes, even when no one else does,
I promise to keep dancing and having fun with you.
I promise to continue to love you unconditionally under any circumstances.

I look forward to all the adventures we have ahead..
I promise you this from my heart, for all the days of my life.
